At a time when Internet use is closely tracked and social networking sites supply data for targeted advertising, Lars Heide presents the first academic study of the invention that

fueled today's information
revolution: the punched card. Early
punched cards
helped to process
the United States
census in 1890.
They soon proved
useful in calculating
invoices and issuing pay slips. As demand for more

systems and reading machines increased in both the United States and Europe, punched cards served ever-larger data-processing purposes. Insurance companies, public utilities, businesses, and governments all used them to keep detailed records of their customers, competitors, employees, citizens, and enemies. The United States used punched-card registers in the late 1930s to pay roughly 21 million Americans their Social Security pensions, Vichy France used similar technologies in an

and the American Story provides intimate views of
individuals and
places in Indiana
set within themes
from American history. During the frontier days when Americans battled
with and exiled
native peoples from
the East, Indiana
was on the leading expansion. As waves of

immigrants swept across the

Appalachians and
eastern waterways, Indiana became established as both a crossroads and as a vital part of Middle America.
